lected to disallow the Jesuit act, the "Grits," the Orangemen and the sturdy "kickers" of the west in general are beginning to ask what good is a governor general anyhow if all he does is draw his salary and not comply with the wishes of the people who pay it. He keeps Rideau hall going part of the year with a lot of servants, most of them imported from England. He buys mighty little here that he can get in England, and about the only return he makes is a dinner little here that he can get in England, and about the only return he makes is a dinner or two and a ball or two to the office holding class of this community. He is civil to the people he comes across, of course; there is no apparent reason why he should not be, though the fact that he is civil is made a great deal of here, as if it were a totally unexpected quality in a governor-general. But $84,600 is beginning to be regarded as a large price to pay for a noblegeneral. But $84,000 is beginning to be to garded as a large price to pay for a noble-man to sign bills that the majority don't want, and give a few dinners and be civil, especially when the other expenses at-taching to the governor system and the vice-royal form of administration are taken into consideration.

vice-royal form of administration are taken into consideration.

The lieutenant governor of Quebec, for instance, gets $10,000 a year and he has proved a dummy and a catspaw. The lieutenant governor of Ontario gets $10,000 a year for a place that ought not to cost the country a cent. Manitoba, a province containing a population of less than a single fourth-class United States city also has a lieutenant governor with a salary of $10,000 a year. The lieutenant governors of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and the Northwest territory get $9,000 a year apiece, and the same officials in Prince Edward Island and British Columbia $7,000 each. All these people have aids, secretaries, residences and so forth, including various contingencies, bringing up the total. various contingencies, bringing up the total, probably, to not much less than a quarter of a million of money.

Extravagant as this outlay appears, when soberly looked into and compared with that of other countries, it represents after all scarcely a third of the cost of the various ministries and contingency at hat have been specified by the cost of the various specified by the cost of the cost of the various specified by the cost of the cost of the various specified by the cost of ministries and contingencies that have been created under this great office holding system of government. In salaries alone these ministers take $197,100 yearly. Ottawa has one minister at $8,000 and twelve ministers at $7,000 each, to keep the governor general in countenance when he draws his pay, and to imitate his example in the great game of how-not-to-do-it, and to maintain the humbug and pretense of important game of how-not-to-do-it, and to maintain the humbug and pretense of important business requiring all this costly machinery. Toronto supports one $5,000 minister and six at $4,000 each; Quebec the same; and the other provinces in proportion.

Then comes the senate, that remarkable body of legislators, the end and object of whose existence ssems to be to lounge through the session in an effort to look dignified in the art of doing nothing except nified in the art of doing nothing except draw pay and stationery and order the pages and understrappers about in good style. There are eighty senators and they occasionally look in at the chamber to draw their $80,000, or transact any other similar important business. The rest of the time, apparently, they spend in killing time at Rideau hall or the Russell, or the clubs, or in one another's amicable society. The commons has 215 members who with punctuality and dispatch draw $215,000 per session. The speaker of the two houses manage to worry along on $8,000 a year between them. The Ontraio members and speaker pocket $55,000; the Quebec legislative council, legislature and two speakers, $75,200, and the rest in proportion. The sum total aggregates in actual salaries upward of half a million ($530,746) for 726 professional politicians, whose labors average sixty days in a year. Add to this sum the salaries of the nine governors the perquisites, the assessments, secretar-ies' aides, houses and the thousand and one expenses that are eating away the

The absurdity and extravagance of the wasteful and pretentious system can only be fully understood when compared with the fully 14 good to return until Sept. 12 the expenditures of the mother country. There are fifty-six more legislators in Can-There are fifty-six more legislators in Canada than are found necessary in Great Britain, and as many departmental heads as are required to run the ship of state of the greatest country in Europe. The mileages and contingencies of the legislature, senate, and so forth, bring up the annual aggregate to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. These are a few figures illustrating but one of the many subjects of dissatisfaction existing in this country that have led to the condition of political unrest at led to the condition of political unrest at this moment witnessed, and they are well worth the consideration of Americans who are looking northward in connection with ecent movements for closer relations.

Herse-Luck in England. The turf luck of the Dake of Portland, who, if he retired now, would almost cersainly head the winning owners of the season, appears more phenomenal when St. Simon, Atlanta and Mowerina. He St. Simon, Atlanta and Mowerina. He bought St. Simon for £1,500, who won every race he started, and has earned quite £3,000 a year since his retirement to the stud, and will doubtless increase it. Atlanta cost £1,000, and she became the dam of Ayrshire, the winner of last year's Derby. Mowerina cost £1,200, won nearly a dozen races, and then became the dam of Donovan, the winner of this year's Derby and of more money than has ever been and of more money than has ever been credited to any other horse. Of the great money stakes the Duke has won the Kemp ton £10,000 and the Newmarket £7,000, and expects to win the Sandown £10,000 and the Manchester £12,000.

He is not self-important, but still is one who expects a good deal of consideration, and gets it. Not long ago the Travelers' made a number of loans through a Colorado broker named Henry. Interest and principal failed to materialize, and Mr. Dennis went west to investigate. The sole occupant of Henry's office was a young man who sat titted back in a chair with his feet on the window sill. His response to inquiries was extremely unsatisfactory, and presently Mr. Dennis became angry, and said, with emphasis:

A STRANGE CASE.

A Doctor Accused of Having Connived to Cause the Death of a Young Woman.

New York Special: Dr. James Downie, a graduate of Giasgow College, was yesterday held by the Brooklyn grand jury for "connivance" in the death by poison of Jessle Duff (or Downie), with whom he had eloped from Scotland. The facts developed an extraordinary story.

The woman was not Downie's wife, unless he had committed bigamy, and if this proved it will have a most important bearing upon his trial, for the danger of prosecution for bigamy would furnish a probable motive for putting the woman out of the way.
